Learning, Play & Program Highlights

The term began with engaging themes around wildlife and the Commonwealth Games, before transitioning toward activities designed to strengthen routine, connection and positive participation within the program.

As the needs of the group have evolved, including supporting children with a range of additional needs, we have placed greater emphasis on clear routines, consistent expectations and familiar boundaries. This has created a more predictable environment for children and helped strengthen relationships between children, their peers and educators.

We are already seeing the benefits of this approach, with children developing a stronger sense of connection to the program and a clearer understanding of how we learn, play and spend time together.

Team & Service Leadership

This term has seen a change in service leadership, with Matt, our Director, taking a more active role within the program. This has provided educators with direct mentoring and additional support to strengthen their skills, consistency and confidence within the service.

As Matt continues to oversee our broader network of services, there have been short periods where relief educators have supported the program. While these changes can temporarily affect the familiar rhythm of the service, the team has responded well, with routines and consistency quickly re-established.

This period of direct leadership is helping us build a stronger, more confident team and a more consistent environment for the children.

Policy & Practice Updates

No information provided.

Child Safety & Wellbeing

We have seen encouraging progress in children’s self-regulation, relationships and engagement with the program this term. As children have matured and become more familiar with consistent routines and expectations, we have been able to gradually reduce the level of support required within two individual behaviour management plans.

We have also seen a positive shift in how children use our sensory and wellbeing spaces. Rather than needing to completely withdraw from the group, children are increasingly choosing to play in smaller groups, find quieter activities and regulate while remaining connected with their peers.

These changes reflect growing confidence within the group and a stronger sense of safety, belonging and connection within the service.

Community Feedback & Resolution

At the beginning of the term, a parent raised concerns regarding inappropriate language and disruptive behaviour, particularly the potential influence this was having on younger children within the program.

The concern was addressed through email correspondence and face-to-face consultation, allowing us to discuss the behaviours being observed and explain the strategies being used by educators.

The matter was resolved through ongoing communication, alongside a renewed focus within the program on consistent expectations, respectful language and positive behaviour. These strategies have formed part of our broader work this term to strengthen routines and create a more settled environment for all children.

Our Focus for the Future

Term 4 will bring the next stage of development for the service, with Matt transitioning back from day-to-day leadership as a new Coordinator is introduced and supported into the role. The focus will be on maintaining the routines, relationships and consistency established throughout this term.

We are also exploring the opportunity for Aldercourt to become a Holiday Program location. Growing the service in this way would strengthen its overall financial position and begin building the sustainable returns needed to support a future financial contribution back to the school.

Our programming will continue to respond to the individual needs of children, while expanding into community and seasonal awareness. This will include practical topics relevant to children and their families, such as bushfire awareness, summer safety and staying safe around beaches and water.
